Enabling organizations and their employees to realize their global ambitions

Simplifying the complex

Vialto Partners' recent survey Mobility Agility: Remote working and other non-traditional mobility explored the new era of a flexible and agile workforce. Businesses are exploring new ways of enabling overseas working including permanent remote work (employee-driven requests to live in a different country to their country of employment) and international hires (business-driven requirement to access global talent pools in a location without a current entity).

Employing people compliantly in locations where the organization has no corporate presence has its challenges. In order to manage the risks, 18 percent of organizations surveyed are using an "Employer of Record" arrangement to facilitate these international working arrangements.

Vialto Partners has collaborated with Velocity Global, a leading provider of Employer of Record services to seamlessly support businesses with enabling these working arrangements. Velocity Global has supported the employment of thousands of executives and managers around the world, all while ensuring compliance with local labor, tax, and immigration laws.

Putting people at the center

Our two organizations have a wealth of experience helping clients establish hiring structures in developed and emerging markets alike.

Our focus is on helping you—and your workforce—by seamlessly enabling flexible remote working arrangements. Working with us can help you retain key talent and build teams across borders, to support the workforce of the future. We put your people first, enabling them to focus on what they do best: building your business.
